

Target Behavioral Response Lab

Gordon C. Cooke
Target Behavioral Response Laboratory
Picatinny Arsenal, New Jersey

CDT Jacob J. Frechette
United States Military Academy
West Point, New York

ABSTRACT:

The Target Behavioral Response Lab (TBRL) conducts research on the individual and group human response to non-lethal weapons through behavioral experimental design. The research is conducted using sophisticated equipment such as the Vicon Motion Capture System and with the help of volunteer human subjects. Emphasis of the research is on the human factor, not the product.

KEYWORDS: Target Behavior Response Lab, human response, non-lethal weapons

CONTACT: Gordon C. Cooke, Target Behavioral Response Laboratory, Picatinny Arsenal, NJ, Tel: (973) 724-9518, E-mail: gordon.cooke@us.army.mil

CDT Jacob J. Frechette, United States Military Academy, West Point, NY, Tel: (815) 535-7383, E-mail: Jacob.frechette@usma.edu